

Message From Our CEO

As the founder and CEO of Ultra Education, I am deeply passionate about the journey we've embarked on to make a meaningful impact in the lives of young people through entrepreneurial education. Our organisation was born out of a desire to inspire and empower children, especially those from underrepresented communities, who often face significant disadvantages in the traditional education system.

Our mission is straightforward yet profound: We believe that talent is everywhere but opportunities are not. We are on a mission to empower disadvantaged children and young people to create their own opportunities, so they have better life chances. This belief is at the heart of everything we do.

The idea for Ultra came from a personal place. My own children's curiosity and passion for entrepreneurship sparked a realisation about the immense potential within young minds when they are encouraged to pursue what they love. This realisation drove me to create the organisation, where we define an entrepreneur as someone who does what they love and makes money from it. It's a simple yet powerful concept that resonates with children and helps them see the potential within themselves.

Our commitment to fostering young entrepreneurs has led to some truly remarkable achievements. Recently, at the West London Business Awards, our young entrepreneurs made us immensely proud. Ilhora-Lee, known as Ilho Sunshine, won an award for her inspirational self-development journals for children. This accolade is a testament to her creativity and dedication. Additionally, Precisa, with her Healthy Kind Deodorants, and Marcus, the founder of MJ Treats, received high commendations for their innovative businesses. Seeing them recognised on such a prestigious platform is validation of our mission and the kidpreneurs hard work.

Message From Our CEO

Another highlight of our journey is the delivery of our Kilburn Entrepreneurship Programme. This initiative has been instrumental in celebrating and nurturing innovation among young entrepreneurs. The programme has been a beacon of support, guiding rising stars towards realising their entrepreneurial dreams. It is heartwarming to witness the progress and success stories emerging from this programme, as young minds transform their ideas into viable businesses.

Moreover, our partnership with Visa in the "Fostering Future Innovators" initiative has been a significant milestone. This collaborative effort aims to equip young entrepreneurs with the skills and knowledge they need to thrive in the business world. Through workshops, mentorship, and hands-on experiences, we have been able to provide invaluable support to these budding entrepreneurs, helping them navigate the challenges of starting and growing a business. The enthusiasm and creativity displayed by the participants in this initiative have been nothing short of inspiring.

We offer a variety of programs tailored to different age groups and educational settings, ensuring that our approach is inclusive and comprehensive. Whether it's our school programs for primary and secondary students, after-school and weekend clubs, or our specialised kids' business fairs and awards, each initiative is designed to provide practical entrepreneurial experiences. We want our young entrepreneurs to not only learn business skills but also develop critical life skills such as problem-solving, creativity, and resilience.

One of the most rewarding aspects of our work is seeing the success stories of the young entrepreneurs we support. For instance, we have helped children turn their passions into thriving businesses, from artists and authors to fashion designers and tech innovators. These young CEOs are not just learning to generate income; they are gaining confidence and the belief that they can achieve great things..

Our dedicated team is the backbone of Ultra Education. From myself to our project managers and facilitators, each member brings a wealth of expertise and a shared commitment to our mission. We all believe in the transformative power of entrepreneurship and work tirelessly to inspire the next generation of innovators and leaders. In conclusion, Ultra is more than just an educational organisation; it is a movement dedicated to democratising entrepreneurial education and empowering young people to reach their fullest potential. Our work is a testament to the power of entrepreneurship as a catalyst for personal and societal transformation. We are excited about the future and the many young lives we will continue to impact positively through our programmes.

Executive Summary

In the fiscal year from April 2023 to March 2024, Ultra Education (Ultra) marked its ninth year of supporting communities by offering entrepreneurship and employment education to underprivileged youth.

This year, Ultra conducted 206 entrepreneurship workshops, 287 one-to-one entrepreneurship coaching sessions, 62 employment training workshops, and 184 one-on-one employment coaching sessions, along with a variety of other services (e.g., mock interviews, CV surgery sessions, etc.). These efforts supported 1,476 direct beneficiaries and 3,408 indirect beneficiaries. Most of these individuals, 93%, come from Global Majority/BAME backgrounds, and 95% live in poverty.

Our evaluation using surveys, interviews, and case studies shows significant positive changes over the past year. For instance, 100% of participants had a better understanding of financial management, 95% felt more confident about business terms, and 90% had improved their communication skills. Additionally, 90% reported increased self-confidence and 90% have a clearer idea of their career goals. Also, 276 young people have started their own businesses, which is a big step toward financial empowerment and boosting business presence.

This report showcases the progress made. It serves as a reference for Ultra Education to reflect on and improve the Theory of Change and service designs, ensuring we continue to make a strong impact on those who need it most. As we look ahead, Ultra is dedicated to reaching more people and making an even bigger difference, helping individuals through education, training, and support.

We need more organisations like ultra education

Ultra education is a fantastic organisation that puts young people first. Its a credit to know us youth have an organisation that supports young people and we need more in this society. They put on fantastic events for young people to sell at and put on amazing workshops to help young people develop and grow their business.

In the run up to their winter business fair, they ran weekly workshops on zoom to help us all in different ways prepare for the business fair which helped massively. They are always supportive and even after their fair they have stayed in contact with us to keep offering us amazing opportunities.

Fantastic initiative

Fantastic initiative, supporting children and young people on their path to professional life and prosperous careers. My daughter loved the Ultrapreneur programme and said she now feels more confident in setting up her own business. It helped her build confidence and gain courage to take action.

Amazing ultra experience

My girls and I connected with Ultra Education for the first time this summer. They have been taking part in their entrepreneurship programme which my girls have thoroughly enjoyed. They've felt motivated to create and move forward their businesses. Ultra E is great for your children in motivating them to be the best at thinking outside the box in how to use their skills, talents, passion and creativity to be the best. Linda has been amazing in encouraging the kids, and they are enjoying their weekly session with Sam. It's positive all round and we are great fans

Case 1: Mike's Entrepreneurial Journey at Ultra Family

"Everything, everything you need in your business, you can contact Ultra's team, they are always there for you."

Three years ago, at the age of 14, Mike launched his business during the pandemic, aiming to develop a creative product that would inspire children dealing with digital overload. However, he soon faced significant hurdles when his two teenage business partners withdrew, leaving him to tackle branding, marketing, and development challenges alone.

Feeling overwhelmed and on the verge of abandoning his project, Mike discovered Ultra on Instagram and received an immediate response. Ultra provided comprehensive business skills training and model support, equipping him with the necessary tools to refine his business approach. "They helped me rebrand my project completely, as it was guite difficult after my two partners withdrew. They also guided me step by step regarding the marketing and advertising," Mike explains. With Ultra's guidance, he navigated the complexities of rebranding, enhancing his business model, legal registration, and company risk management. Now, 17-year-old Mike owns a registered company with a professional online presence, including a website, a LinkedIn page, and profiles on various retail websites to expand his market reach.

Participating in Ultra's business fair marked another significant milestone for Mike. Here, he connected with a broader entrepreneurial network, gaining invaluable insights and networking opportunities.

"I was just blown away by seeing 140 young people in one space selling their products"

...he recalls, inspired by the motivational atmosphere at the event.

Ultra's support extended beyond business training, providing a nurturing, family-like community. "The team are lovely and supportive. The Ultra family is really great. It's very good." Mike describes.

"I appreciate support from all different communities. Having coaching and mentoring support from the Black community is quite unique and better, as this is the community I belong to. The role modelling and family atmosphere is more powerful"

...he adds, acknowledging the values of culturally relevant support.

Looking ahead, Mike is optimistic about the future, with plans to further integrate his business into his long-term career goals. "I can see my business indefinitely as part of my future," he remarks, envisioning no limits to where his entrepreneurial journey can take him.

(Interview time: March 2024)

Outcome 1: Enhanced entrepreneurship and employment skills

00

Outcome 2: Boosted Self-awareness, Self-esteem, and Confidence

- Ultra Education enhances self-awareness, self-esteem, and confidence in marginalized youth.
- Addresses underrepresentation of racialized communities in entrepreneurship.
- Focuses on mental support and personal growth.
- Helps youth identify strengths and develop entrepreneurial ideas or employment opportunities.

Approach and Supportive Activities:

- Ultra uses culturally sensitive, community-oriented, family-holistic approaches.
- Differs from alienating, judgmental traditional school settings.
- Focuses on asset-based methods, highlighting participants' unique strengths.
- Supportive activities: issuing certificates/awards, hosting family events, conducting simulations.
- Acknowledges achievements, creates community and belonging.
- Reinforces self-esteem and confidence for participants and their families.

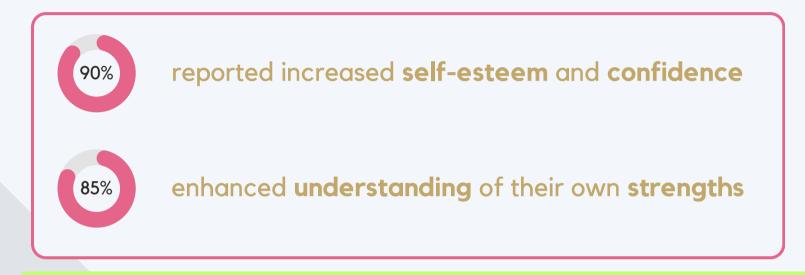

Outcome Measurement

Results from a survey conducted in March 2024 with 42 participants demonstrate significant improvements:

- This empowerment is vital for promoting sustained engagement in entrepreneurship and employment, especially among those who have felt marginalised or undervalued.
- By cultivating a supportive environment, Ultra is instrumental in helping participants realise their full potential.
- Ultra helps participants overcome the challenges of underrepresentation.
- Ultra prepares participants for successful futures.

Outcome 2: Boosted self-awareness, self-esteem, and confidence

Case 2: Unleashing Potential Through Ultra Education

"At Ultra, I try out opportunities"

Bruno, a 16-year-old entrepreneur with a wealth of innovative ideas and unwavering diligence, enjoys unlocking various opportunities with Ultra.

Bruno developed his first entrepreneurial idea while working part-time. He wants to develop a digital product to improve the efficiency of educational institutions. His career adviser at school introduced him to Ultra Education, which accelerated his business development. Based on his business idea, Ultra connected B with a mentor, a Government digital management expert, who has worked with Bruno closely, and helped him refine his ideas and begin the development of an app. So far, in between exams, school work and part-time work, Bruno's app is steadily in progress.

While his App is still under development, Bruno has shown his talent in the business areas. Encouraged and supported Ultra, Bruno competed in several prestigious entrepreneurship competitions and became the winner of one and the finalist of another. He shared that though challenged by feelings of 'impostor syndrome', these experiences really pushed him out of his comfort zone, appreciating his strengths and talents.

"From my first presentation to now, speaking in front of my whole year group, there's been a drastic improvement"

Bruno is glad of his improvement in public speaking, which increased his visibility and self-assurance.

"This is definitely a confidence boost."

For Bruno, the sense of community within Ultra Education was transformative. Describing it as "like a family," he highlighted the nurturing and supportive environment that was crucial during his developmental stages. This community aspect was especially empowering within the context of the Black Tech Awards, where B felt...

"...a profound connection to his identity and received significant recognition."

Looking ahead, Bruno is optimistic about his future.

"I plan to finish my degree, and develop my business at the same time"

...he says, eager to further his impact in the tech and educational sectors. (Interview time: March 2024)

Outcome 2: Boosted self-awareness, self-esteem, and confidence

Outcome 3: Elevated Career Aspirations I.

- Core objective: Help marginalised young people develop bold career ambitions from an early age.
- Comprehensive program features engaging mentors from marginalised backgrounds and celebrity speakers.
- Utilises privileged venues and activities to inspire and educate.
- Participants guided through defining career goals with career planning workshops.
- Gain exposure to new possibilities in environments they might not typically access. •
- Holistic approach helps participants realise their potential and create actionable career plans.

Outcome Measurement

A survey conducted in March 2024 with 42 participants demonstrated substantial outcomes:

- Additional research involved 65 parents of Ultra users from Black Caribbean backgrounds in Brent (2021).
- 85% expressed concerns about risks like gang grooming or antisocial behavior affecting their children.
- Ultra's focus on career aspirations serves as a powerful motivation against such risks.
- Provides young people with purpose and direction.

Feedback from participants in March 2024 highlights the personal impact of the programme:

"It's okay to fail, you just need to be unique with your ideas."

highlighting marginalised young people's resilience.

"It takes hard work and focus on everything you do. And also be confident in yourself. But I now feel like I am on the right path."

This reflects the enhanced career clarity participants gain through their engagement with Ultra Education.

Ultra Education's Effective Strategy:

- Elevate career aspirations among marginalized youth.
- Connect young people with inspiring mentors.
- Provide enriching experiences and equip them with tools for successful career planning.
- Enhance career readiness and instill a sense of possibility and direction.
- Steer participants away from potential risks towards fulfilling and ambitious career paths.

Outcome 3: Elevated career aspirations

Outcome 3: Elevated Career Aspirations (con't)

Case 3: Lola's aspired and aspiring journey

"Ultra is crucial because our young people are misunderstood, and offering them this platform to explore their potential is amazing" ... shared by Lola's father.

When Lola moved to the UK at the age of 4, she faced substantial challenges in adapting to a new culture, which led to feelings of anxiety and stress. Joining Ultra Education at the age of 7 was an opportunity to meet other children especially after the COVID pandemic, when many young people experienced the world as uncertain and scary place.

Lola's journey with Ultra began at the UK's Biggest Youth Business Fair in Wembley, where she showcased her children's journals for the first time, inspired by her own challenges. This event provided Lola with a safe and aspirational space.

According to her father, this Ultra Business Fair met all their requirements in term of exposure, diversity and network. Talking to peers, visitors and Ultra mentors, Lola gained in confidence and realised that her story could make a significant difference in people's lives. Her dream, with her journals, is to help children worldwide who are experiencing emotional and social difficulties. And Ultra Business programmes were conducive to her business skills.

"It helps that there is a focus on the needs of Black children because Lola was isolated when she first came into the country. Through Ultra, she realised she is not alone"...her father noted.

This experience at the Ultra Fair was outstanding and it developed Lola's interest in empowering herself in a safe place with people like her. Lola enrolled in Ultra Business programmes a few weeks after the fair and was introduced to practical entrepreneurship concepts such as cash flow and revenue in an engaging way. By setting business targets and making plans, she not only gained practical business skills but also learned to shape her ideas into concrete ambitions and goals.

Lola's recognition extended beyond the Ultra community in the UK. She has been invited by the leader of a Caribbean country but also a Mayor in France to exhibit at their business event, highlighting her growing influence.

Ultra Team had provided a space for kidpreneurs's parents to promote their business, share events and support each other. Thanks to this group, Lola had the opportunity to speak in a school during Black History Month and participated in an Investors Business Day at Level 39 in Canary Wharf. This group is also a valuable resource in terms of calls for award submissions. Thanks to the significant impact her journals have made in the Mental Health field in the UK and beyond, Lola is now a multi-award-winning kidpreneur with a few accolades such as the prestigious national BCyA Award, the West London Business Award or the TruLittleHero Award.

As reflected by Lola's father, the support from Ultra-particularly the opportunity to engage with mentors who are part of the Black community-has been instrumental in her entrepreneurial mindset. Lola's journey from facing significant personal challenges to becoming a confident young entrepreneur ready to inspire others is a powerful narrative of resilience and empowerment.

Outcome 4: Improved Income and Financial Stability

- Enabled 276 young people to start their own businesses in the past year.
- 87% of these enterprises sustained for more than six months at a living wage.
- 71% of participants in employment programmes have either sustained or secured work.
- Many participants grew up without financial stability or stable job role models.
- Achievements are particularly significant given their backgrounds.
- Financial stability experienced by young entrepreneurs and employees may not match fully employed adults.
- Increase in financial income represents a substantial step forward.
- Even partial financial stability significantly impacts their lives.
- Boosts aspirations and confidence, providing positive feedback.
- Empowers them to develop their skills further.
- Elevated career aspirations and enhanced self-esteem are outcomes of Ultra's programs.
- Success in businesses or employment boosts young people's economic status and self-worth.
- Positive cycle of growth and stability benefits individuals and extends to the wider community.

The survey indicates that just 47% of children in the UK received any form of financial literacy education in 2023. (Brader, 2024)

Recommendations

Continue Blended Learning Approach:

- Maintain an effective combination of group workshops and one-to-one coaching sessions.
- Cater to diverse psychological needs and learning styles.

Introduce Female-Only Workshops:

- Create safe spaces that encourage participation.
- Address specific challenges faced by young women in entrepreneurship and employment sectors.

Expand Thematic Focus:

- Build on the success of technology and fashion themes.
- Expand into new areas such as green technologies, health, and digital media.
- Cater to a broader range of interests and economic opportunities.
- Meet diverse asset-based entrepreneurship and employment education needs.

The projects delivered in 2023/24 have significantly advanced Ultra's mission of empowering underprivileged youth through entrepreneurship and employment education. These initiatives led to notable improvements in participants' skills, confidence, career aspirations, and financial stability. As we move forward, it is vital to build on these successes while also identifying areas for enhancement.
